Please see this pleasant 33 year old lady regarding ?hormonally driven facial rash. Several times per year, she gets a burning blotchy red rash on both cheeks (malar distribution), usually occurring around menses. This rash has been evaluated multiple times by Dermatology, Allergy and Rheumatology (due to positive ANA), without a cause being identified. It is not responsive to steroids or other topical treatments. Pt has not been on OCP in a long time due to side effects, and recent pregnancy (currently 8 months post partum). The rash recently recurred. Is it possible it is being driven by progesterone levels?

Thank you!
